

These two are siblings and have been abandoned by their father leaving them with their mentally sick mother who also abandoned them. They were taken to a health centre by their maternal grandfather who was met by a social welfare officer and the children were placed into temporary care. Now at Bethany they are doing well, though the little girl still can't walk or say simple words expected for her age and this is because of the condition she was in whilst with her parents...she was very malnourished but she is doing well now.
